PREFACE.

As the history of Cornish was nearing completion the writer became desirous of aid and counsel, and asked the town to appoint a committee for that purpose. The town kindly granted his request, and a committee, designated by himself, consisting of George L. Deming, William W. Balloch and Fenno B. Comings was chosen. Their duties at first were examination of the manuscript and ascertaining cost of publication. The committee having rendered a favorable report, on March 13, 1911, the following resolution was by vote adopted: "Resolved, That the town history committee appointed in March, 1910, arrange for the publication and sale of the Town History, and act with the historian in any matter pertaining thereto."

The committee have endeavored to be faithful in the discharge of all these duties, and the writer hereby takes pleasure in expressing his profound gratitude for all of their aid and coöperation.

GENEALOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

INTRODUCTION.

The genealogical record of the families of the town is not the least interesting portion of its history.

“If you would know who you are,
Learn whence you came.”

Genealogical study is regarded by most as dry and unprofitable, but this is due to misapprehension of its importance. One author declares that “the keeping of family records is a criterion of the difference between worthy families and all other kinds.” Sure it is, that with few exceptions the illustrious and honorable can trace their ancestry back for generations. Believing in the law of heredity, they have been, and still are, increasingly inspired with an ambition to sustain the honor of their family name. Such, carefully preserve their records, while others are indifferent about the matter. The goodness of a family depends more on the number of its generations than on any other condition.

We regret that our record of the families of Cornish is so incomplete. It was purposed from the first to include that of every family that ever became permanently resident of the town. It was a colossal undertaking under the circumstances. Had every family preserved their full data of events, and, upon call, have forwarded us a copy of the same, the task, though great, could have been accomplished much easier and quicker.

The records of a large number of families are broken and lacking much important data, but this is unavoidable for several reasons. Quite a number of families who once lived in town evidently moved away, leaving no posterity behind them. Other families once prominent in town, have here become extinct, and their descendants are scattered world-wide and beyond our knowledge. We have been enabled to find many of them, but the larger portion is still unknown. This accounts, in a measure, for the incompleteness of the work.

The material for these genealogies has been obtained from town records, inscriptions from cemeteries, family records, church records, old writings, besides extensive correspondence and interviews.

These authorities often fail to agree on dates of events. As there can be but one date for the same event, we have elected the one most probable and have marked it uncertain (?).

Thus the difficulties of this compilation have been many, but these must make the value of the work more apparent.

The plan has been to give the line of descent from the earliest known ancestor to the first settlement of the family in town, and from that time to give as full a record as possible to the present, provided the family continues to remain in town. In case they remove, the children, and, in some cases, the grandchildren of natives are given though born out of town.

From the nature of the case the work of the genealogist is never complete. Changes are constantly occurring. If up-to-date yesterday, today brings a change that the record will not show.

With all these considerations and lack of perfection, the compiler takes pleasure in showing the following results: About 250 family names, over 1,000 families and nearly 10,000 individual names.

Many families have apparently taken a deep interest in this work, and have rendered all the aid in their power to further it. To these especially, and to all others who have contributed to the success of this work, we tender sincere thanks.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR GENEALOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

Names of towns given are understood as belonging to New Hampshire, unless otherwise indicated, except Boston and New York.

Arabic figures over the right end of a name indicate the generation.

? implies uncertainty on what immediately precedes it.

LEVI NICHOLS BARNARD was b. Aug. 25, 1809, in Springfield, Vt., and spent most of his life in his native town. He came to Cornish in 1847 and settled on the Isaac Wellman farm where he remained a few years. He m. July 19, 1849, Eliza Wellman, dau. of Isaac and Mercy (Colton) Wellman. They had one child, a son, Isaac Wellman, b. Sept. 10, 1852, whose name was afterwards changed by act of the legislature of 1878 to Elroy Wellman Barnard, 2d. Concerning the son it is said that he was an active special correspondent for several papers both in Boston and New York. Was a member of the educational party to Europe at the World's Universal Exposition at Vienna in 1873. Was stationed at Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876. Has visited many lands and taken part in many notable gatherings.

Soon after the birth of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Barnard returned to Springfield, where Mrs. Barnard d. Feb. 12, 1893. Mr. Barnard retained his faculties in a remarkable degree to extreme old age. He celebrated the hundredth anniversary of his birth Aug. 25, 1909. On this joyous occasion, Mr. Barnard said: "The secret of my long life is due to three things—good habits, substantial food and keeping busy." A brother of Mr. Barnard, Frederic, aged nearly 95, was present on this occasion. Mr. Barnard d. Oct. 28, 1909, aged 100-2-3. His remains were brought to Cornish and placed beside those of his wife. By his request, many citizens of Cornish assembled on the occasion and the church bell pealed off one hundred notes.

BARTLETT.

Among the tombstone records of Cornish is that of Dea. John Bartlett, who was b. in 1727, and d. June 8, 1797. By his side are the remains of his wife, Jemima Downer, who was b. in 1732, and d. Aug. 17, 1818. The records also show that during the early years of the town Mr. Bartlett was a prominent man, as his name frequently appears among town affairs. Unfortunately the genealogist has been unable to determine who his posterity have been, yet by the census of 1790 it is shown that he then had two sons over sixteen years of age and also two daughters.

The other Bartletts of Cornish all trace to a Samuel Bartlett, said to be a contemporary of Dea. John; yet his name does not appear in Cornish in the census of 1790, and we have no records showing any relationship between these two men. It may be doing an injustice to the records and memory of Dea. John Bartlett to drop his name as an ancestor, and give to Samuel Bartlett the credit of the worthy citizenship of the name in Cornish, but their family records, as far as known, all trace to him as their ancestor.

1. SAMUEL¹ BARTLETT, descended from Puritan stock which early came from Eng. to America. He came to Cornish during its early history and settled on Dingleton Hill, on a farm since owned and occupied by Philander Williams. He m. a Downer and had several children, all b. before coming to town. It is not known how many they had, but the names of four have been preserved. They were:
 2. i. NATHANIEL, b. in 1755.
 - ii. LYDIA, b. Aug. 8, 1760; m. —, Thomas Ayers of Cornish, and had eleven children. (See Ayers.) She d. Jan. 15, 1830.

BURR.

The Burrs were of English descent. Benjamin, with Samuel, his son, came to America soon after N. E. was open for settlement. Lived in Hartford, Conn., some years, where Jonathan^s was b., who rem. to Middletown, Conn., where Ebenezer^s was b. He rem. to Haddam, Conn., where he had a son, Ebenezer, b. The father and son both emigrated to that part of Grantham which subsequently was annexed to Cornish. The son, Ebenezer, b. March, 1749, m. Elizabeth Dorchester. He d. Sept. 15, 1829. She d. Feb. 22, 1828. The following brief sketch of these ancestors by Fred A. Dean, Esq., we insert here:

"The Burrs came to Grantham to settle several years before the Revolution. They settled in that part of the town since set off into Cornish.

"They cleared a farm, and generation after generation lived and died on the old farm. After more than 125 years of ownership, and occupation, it passed out of the family keeping into the hands of others.

"From that old farm one of the Burr boys went to fight a king that a nation might be born. Great-grandmother Burr came all the way from Haddam, Conn., to Grantham, N. H., on a pack horse. Came up the Connecticut river to old Fort No. 4 and on to Windsor, Vt., thence over the hills to their new-made home in the wilderness. The story of their life and hardships I need not write. It was the life of all who go ahead to hew out honors and institutions for the generations that come after them. It takes brave men and women to be pioneers.

"They must sow that others may reap, suffer that others may gain, and labor that others may have a life worth living."

CHASE.

AQUILLA¹ CHASE, b. in Conway, Eng., in 1618, was the honored ancestor of all of this name who have ever lived in Cornish. With two of his brothers he came to America in 1639, and settled in Hampton. He m. Ann Wheeler, rem. to Newbury, Mass., in 1646 and d. there Dec. 27, 1670. They had eleven children.

Their youngest son, Moses², sometimes called "Ensign Moses," was b. Dec. 24, 1663. He lived and d. in Newbury. He m. Nov. 10, 1684, Anne Follansbe. They had nine children. Their eldest son Daniel³ was b. Sept. 20, 1685; m. Jan. 2, 1707, Sarah March. Rem. to Sutton, Mass., about 1730, and d. there April 17, 1768, aged 83. They were the parents of ten children. Three of their sons: Samuel⁴, Caleb⁴* and Moses⁴, with their families settled in Cornish. Some of them came at the time of settlement of the town in 1765 and others soon followed. A few representative men of other families joined them in the work and hardships incident to the new settlement.

At this time, and for many years following the Chase family were more numerous than any other in town, and their influence of course, correspondingly large. Most of them were possessed of minds "not born to serve, but rule." Their motto, "Ne Cede Malis" (yield not to difficulty), was fully exemplified in their history as pioneers of Cornish, and that in a marked degree. But like other families, many of their records have been irrecoverably lost. Had the early settlers preserved them, it would have enabled the genealogist to have done ampler justice to the memory of those of whom we have just reason to be proud.

*Doubts have arisen that Caleb⁴ ever lived in town, yet some of his children became residents, as the records show. (See Caleb branch.)

Senn. Chase

Born September 28, 1707, and died August 12, 1800, at Cornish, N. H.

1. SAMUEL⁴ CHASE (Daniel³, Moses², Aquilla¹) commonly called "Judge Chase" was the eldest son of Daniel³, and b. in Newbury, Mass., Sept. 28, 1707. He m. in May, 1728, Mary Dudley, dau. of Samuel Dudley, Esq. She was b. Feb. 22, 1711, and d. in Cornish Feb. 12, 1789.

The "memory of the just is blessed."

(Inscription on her tombstone.)

They, with most of their children, some of them having families of their own, left Sutton, Mass., and lived a few years in Walpole, and then settled in Cornish among the first. He was the first justice of the peace in town, and as such, called the first town meeting. He was the first moderator, also the first selectman in town for many years. He retained his physical and mental vigor to a remarkable degree, for, although about seventy years of age, he went with the regt. of his son, Col. Jonathan Chase, to Saratoga and Bennington in the autumn of 1777. He afterwards figured conspicuously in the "New Hampshire Grants Controversy" as the records abundantly show. His name appears in connection with nearly all public gatherings and documentary transactions in town for several years. He was one of the judges for the Co. of Cheshire, which at that time included all the present territory of Sullivan Co.

After the death of his wife, Mary, in 1789, it is said he again m. In his will, executed Aug. 2, 1794, he made a bequest, "To Ester: my dear and loving wife, This I do in consideration of my love and affection for her, and her kind treatment of me in my advanced age." He d. in Cornish Aug. 12, 1800, aged nearly 93.

"Sweet peace and Heavenly hope and humble joy

If the honor of being the first settler in Cornish belongs to any one individual more than another it would seem that Dea. Dudley Chase can claim it. At the age of 35, in the strength of manhood and possessed of the spirit of enterprise and a desire to provide ample means for his already numerous family, he, with others, was the first to make a clearing in the wilds of Cornish. (See Settlement of Cornish for particulars.)

Eight children were b. to this couple before coming to town and seven afterwards. The first white child b. in town was their ninth. In many respects this was a remarkable family. Fourteen of the fifteen children grew to maturity and filled useful and even brilliant positions in life. Five of the sons were educated at Dartmouth College, while the entire number sought and acquired high degrees of scholarly attainments.

The modern student may well query: How did they? How could these young men be prepared for college under such circumstances? There were then no "Lessons in Latin made easy," no "English Notes," no "Ponies," but the boys just dug their way through with a determination that would astonish many a modern student, because filled with high aspirations and with the gladness of a pure and happy youth, all difficulties were overcome.

All this was about seventy years before the first railroad car steamed up the Connecticut valley, crossing the farm once theirs, that brought the modern paraphernalia that is called Advanced Civilization.

The relation of a circumstance here may be of interest to many. In 1780 Deacon Chase began to consider ways and means for providing his family with homes for themselves. Being "well-to-do," he proposed to invest in more land. He therefore started out to explore the west branch of White River in Vermont.

He made the journey on foot and alone. Late at night, weary and hungry he made his camp in the unbroken forest, at a point near the present site of Christ's Church in Bethel, Vt. He found a convenient stone for a pillow and there spent the night. He fell asleep, and, like Jacob of old, dreamed a similar dream. He interpreted this as a token that he had found the land that he was seeking. Upon awakening and resuming his search, he saw that the meadow lands up the branch were fair and fertile. He therefore concluded to make an extensive purchase of land, and named it Bethel and the western part Gilead, and Bethel-Gilead it has been unto this day.

Several of his family and their children subsequently settled in Bethel, being the first settlers of that town.

Deacon Chase and wife, however, never removed their home from Cornish, but each lived to an advanced age. After her death which occurred Sept. 13, 1813, he at times conceived himself away from home and would piteously beseech his family to take him home. Still, at times, he would visit his wife's grave with unclouded reason, and he caused this couplet to be inscribed on her tombstone:

"An angel's arm can't snatch me from the grave, Legions of angels can't confine me there."

He survived her but a few months, dying April 13, 1814.
On his tombstone is written:

"This is the way to immortality."

CHILD.

This name was at first used as a prefix or title to other names, but finally became a surname throughout England. Several noteworthy families of this name are mentioned through the centuries following the Norman conquest, sketches and incidents of whom are of abundant record. They adopted armorial ensigns, or coat of arms, varying in significance and design. A leading one of these bore the motto: "Imitari quam invidere," signifying, "I imitate those whom you envy." The paternity of early emigrants is often veiled in a greater or less degree of uncertainty. So in this case, the parentage of Ephraim Child and Benjamin Child, his nephew, cannot be given. Together they came to America in 1630 and settled in Watertown, Mass. From Benjamin have sprung all of the name who have ever lived in Cornish. He, with Mary, his wife, became the parents of twelve children. Benjamin², their second child, was born in Roxbury, Mass., in 1656. He m. Grace Morris, March 7, 1683. They also had twelve children. Ephraim¹, their first child, was born in Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 18, 1683; m. Priscilla Harris in 1710. He, with six of his brothers migrated to Woodstock, Conn., then called "New Roxbury." Ephraim³ and Priscilla had ten children. Their second son, Daniel⁴, was b. in Woodstock, Jan., 1713; m. Jan., 1747, Ruth Ammidown Curtis. They had six children. Stephen⁵, was their third child and third son.

COBB.

This family can easily be traced back 300 years to Henry Cobb; b. 1586 in the County of Kent, Eng. He came to America in 1629 and was a prominent man in Barnstable, Mass., where he lived and d. He left sixteen children. His eldest son, John; b. June 7, 1632, in Plymouth, Mass., had eight children. His fourth son, Ebenezer; b. Aug. 9, 1671, had a family of twelve children, b. in Kingston and Middleboro, Mass. The eldest son, Ebenezer, was b. in Kingston in a house still standing (1900). Lived 107 years and 8 months, living in three centuries, having been b. in 1694, and dying in 1801. He had eleven children. His eldest son, also named Ebenezer, was parent of seventeen children. Of this family two brothers, Francis and Ebenezer, both b. in Plympton, Mass., came to Cornish about 1784. Francis had served as a soldier in the War of the Revolution to its close. They bought a tract of land of Esq. Daniel Chase, whereon they settled and spent the remainder of their lives.

They divided the land between themselves and the farms still bear their names. It was then chiefly a tract of wild woodland, but they cleared a portion, and raised wheat, paying for the land in one year. The yield is said to have been 70 bu. to the acre.

COMINGS.

The first known record of this name in this country is that of Isaac Comings spelled (Cumings). He came from Eng. or Scotland to this country about 1640. He and his descendants for several generations settled chiefly in the towns of eastern Mass. The direct line of those of his descendants who came to Cornish is as follows:

Isaac¹, b. in 1601; d. in 1677. John², b. 1630; m. Sarah Howlet. He d. Dec. 1, 1700. She d. Dec. 7, 1700. John³, b. 1657; m. Sept. 13, 1680, Elizabeth Kingsley. She was killed by the Indians July 3, 1706. (See Belknap, I, 173.) John⁴, b. July 7, 1682; m. Elizabeth Adams Oct. 3, 1705. He d. April 27, 1759. She d. April 30, 1759.

1. SAMUEL⁵ COMINGS, their fourth son was b. in Westford, Mass., Sept. 16, 1718; m. Dec. 1, 1741, Sarah Spaulding. She was b. June 9, 1723. They res. in Westford, Mass., several years and rem. to Dunstable, Mass., in 1757 and lived there till 1773, when they rem. to Cornish. He took a deed of land and a mill of Jonathan Chase, Esq., which for more than a century has been called "Comings Mills." Here they spent the remainder of their lives. He d. June 6, 1796, in his 78th year. She d. Nov. 20, 1801, aged 78. Both were buried in the cemetery on the Comings place, near the center of the town. Children:

2. SAMUEL⁶ COMINGS (Samuel⁵, John⁴⁻³⁻², Isaac¹), eldest son of Samuel⁵ and Sarah (Spaulding) Comings, b. Nov. 18, 1742, in Westford, Mass.; m. first, Oct. 28, 1765, Sarah Butterfield, b. July 4, 1745, d. Aug. 31, 1804. There is nothing to show when he came to Cornish, as he remained away till all their children were born, the last being in 1789. He probably came soon after this, and lived with his father. They carried on their extensive farm, beside running the mill a large portion of the time. They also increased the capacity of the latter, and added a carding mill, carpenter shop, and tenement rooms. Thus the little settlement took on the appearance of substantial thrift and prosperity. The dense forests that then surrounded, and the waters that propelled the mill, rushing over a rocky precipice down into a densely wooded glen, presented scenery exceedingly grand and picturesque. Some of these attractions still remain, but the woodman's ax has despoiled much of the primitive beauty of the surrounding forests, and the old time-honored mills, so useful in their day, have been destroyed by fire. Mr. Comings spent the remainder of his life in Cornish dying Jan. 17, 1826. After the death of his first wife, he m. second, Mrs. Lydia (Marsh) Pollard, and third, some years afterward, Mrs. Lucy Willard. 1. DAVID⁶ COMINGS (David⁵, Ephraim⁴, Thomas³, John², Isaac¹) b. in 1769, in Nottingham West, now Hudson, was the son of Capt. David and Elizabeth (Butterfield) Comings. Elizabeth Butterfield and Sarah Butterfield who m. Capt. Samuel⁵ Comings, were sisters. In this way, at least, the two branches of Comings in Cornish are related. Also Thomas³ in one branch is brother to John³ in the other. This connection between the two branches of the family in Cornish was ascertained through the diligent researches of Mr. A. O. Cummins of Montpelier, Vt., who has rendered very efficient aid in compiling the Comings record. Mr. Comings m. Dec. 24, 1793, Phoebe Hall (or Wyman) of Nottingham West, b. in 1769. They removed to Pelham in 1804 and to Cornish in 1806. They settled on Cornish Flat on a farm just north of the present site of the Baptist church and spent the rest of their lives there. She d. Feb. 12, 1846. He d. April 27, 1819.

"Within this sacred bed of rest, a tender father lies,

But he shall live among the just, when Christ shall bid him rise."

(Epitaph on his tombstone.)

It is noteworthy that the father, with a loved daughter, were the first two whose remains were carried into the new Baptist church on Cornish Flat, after its erection in the spring of 1819, and that 27 years later, in 1846, the mother with a devoted son were the first two whose remains were borne into the same house after a complete remodeling of the same. JOSEPH B. COMINGS.

3. JOSEPH B.⁷ COMINGS (David⁶⁻⁵, Ephraim⁴, Thomas³, John², Isaac¹) was b. Nov. 1, 1805, in Pelham. After the death of his father in 1819, he remained with his mother till he became of age. Soon after this he, with his brother Benjamin, came into possession of the farm and he built the brick house between their old home and the Baptist church. He then m. Oct. 1, 1835, Sybil P. Nevens of Cornish, dau. of David and Betsey (Pollard) Nevens, b. Feb. 14, 1808. Soon after he sold his interest to his brother and purchased the Bryant farm, a little north of the center of the town, where he lived the remainder of his life. He was a prosperous and successful farmer, for like Solomon, "he loved agriculture." Unlike many others, he, with the hearty coöperation of a prudent, energetic and devoted wife, made farming a complete financial success. He was the first to introduce into town the Durham cattle and took great interest in raising choice specimens of the breed. For several years he was one of the selectmen and twice represented the town in the state legislature. Although not a member of any religious body, he was always regular in attendance upon divine worship and contributed liberally to its support. He possessed the full confidence and respect of his townsmen and all others who knew him. He retained his faculties, his interest in his farm and in the topics of the day, to an advanced age. He d. He was a machinist and lived in Boston. While there in 1847, he sent his wife and children to Cornish to live near his aged father. On July 27, 1848, a fearful thunder storm arose. The mother, with five of her youngest children, becoming fearful, left their own house and fled for shelter and companionship to the house of her father-in-law, Captain Dodge. A strong gale swept down the ravine from the northwest and destroyed the house in which they were. A drenching rain immediately followed. The old gentleman and his housekeeper were unhurt. The mother with three of her children were found dead. A boy was found alive, but fearfully scalped and pinioned in the débris, but the most wonderful circumstance connected with it was the little baby in its mother's arms, sheltered by her crushed form, was alive and unharmed. The sad intelligence was conveyed as soon as possible to the bereaved husband and father, who, with characteristic faith and Christian composure said, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, and blessed be the name of the Lord." The funeral rites were impressive and solemn. A pulpit was erected outside the church, midway between the two audience rooms, so the speaker could be heard by those crowding both rooms, as well as by crowds assembled outside. Dr. Nahum P. Foster, pastor of the Baptist Church, preached the sermon. The occasion and event created a deep impression.

FURNALD.

WILLIAM FURNALD, with Molly, his wife, and a family of nine children, appears on the Cornish records. None are left in town to tell of their history. The cemetery records the death of William as occurring Sept. 7, 1816. Also of one of his children and of one grandchild. The hill where he lived, northwest of the Flat, has for nearly a century borne the name of Fernald Hill. All these circumstances lead one to infer that the family remained in town about three decades. There is no record of his wife's death in town, therefore it is supposable that, after the death of her husband, she left town, taking all her family with her, and no record or tradition has been found telling where they went. Their children were:

- i. JOHN, b. Dec. 2, 1781.

He built and owned the upper mills and shops at the Flat, also a fine res. The town, recognizing his business ability, sought his services first as treasurer two or three years; then as selectman three years. During the Civil War he enlisted about thirty men for the service. Being possessed of a shrewd business talent, of sound judgment and integrity, and a good degree of liberality, he has been one of the foremost to advance any project that tended for the public good. A Baptist, devoted and true, he, with the coöperation of his devoted and faithful wife, have, in addition to many former gifts, bequeathed the sum of $3,500 for the benefit of the Baptist Church in Cornish.

HALL.

The genealogy of some of the families of Cornish corresponds largely with the records of the same families in adjoining towns. Kinship had no regard for town lines. Members of the same families settled on both sides of these lines. The Hall family and several others present apt illustrations of this. The genealogist found that in order to do justice to those who have res.

in Cornish, it was necessary to record many families entire, even if a portion of its members were not at all times, or perhaps never res. of Cornish. This will aid any in adjoining towns desiring to write up a record of those families in those towns.

Three distinct families of the name of Hall have settled in and about Cornish. These came from the towns of Medford, Yarmouth and Rehoboth, Mass., hence are called respectively the Medford, Yarmouth and Rehoboth branches. The Medford branch traces to John¹, b. in Eng. in 1627 and d. in Medford Oct. 18, 1701. His son, Percival², b. Feb. 11, 1672, d. Dec. 25, 1752. He had a son:

ISRAEL HALL.

The Yarmouth branch of Halls also traces back to a John Hall, who in 1630 came from Eng. to Charlestown, Mass. He was father of Dea. John Hall, who lived and d. in Yarmouth, who was the father of Joseph Hall, also of Yarmouth, who was the father of Rev. David Hall, of Sutton, Mass., who was b. Aug. 6, 1704, and d. in Sutton, Mass., May 8, 1879. He m. June 24, 1731, Elizabeth Buckley of Concord, Mass. He graduated at Harvard in 1724; received honorary degree of D.D. from Dartmouth in 1777; was pastor of the church in Sutton nearly sixty years, or till his death.

Special mention is made of him, for, from his church in Sutton, emigrated many of the pioneers who settled the town in Cornish, some of his own family being of the number. He was a man of noble bearing, intellectual vigor and fervent piety. Was several times "called" to settle over more prominent churches, but he preferred to remain in Sutton because of the mutual love and affection existing between pastor and people. His private diary that he kept during much of his pastorate, has been preserved and is a very interesting document, revealing his eccentricities as well as his fatherly care over his church in Sutton, and his deep interest in those leaving it for the new settlement in Cornish.

Who knows how much Cornish is indebted to the strong faith and prayers of this eminent divine, in its religious constitution?

For some years he was one of the firm of J. P. Squires & Co. of Boston. In 1886, he returned to Cornish for a short time. Losing his only child, by a sad fatality (see Casualties), he returned to Chelsea, Mass., where he engaged in the provision business in Faneuil Hall Market, Boston, until 1889, when he retired. Since 1890, he has

res. in Watertown, Mass. He, however, owns a large stock farm in Newport, which is under the management of his brother, Henry M. He is generous, sympathetic and thoughtful of the wants of the needy. Worthy young persons and public institutions have been aided by him. The chapel at Mt. Auburn, Mass., was built largely with his money. He remembered his native town by a fund of $3,000 for the worthy poor. In all the laudable enterprises his excellent wife, while living, joined him in hearty self-sacrificing approval, and since her death he has continued in many similar acts of benevolence. They had but one child, Mary Treat, b. March, 1864, in Chelsea, Mass., and d. in Cornish Oct. 22, 1866.

RICHARDSON.

"Richard" was a favorite name in Eng., both before and after the Norman Conquest. Many families of the nobility bore this name. Their posterity were called the "Sons of Richard." The transition to Richard's Sons was easy and a matter of course. Being widely diffused in Europe, the name frequently appeared among early emigrants to America, and often with no traceable connection between them.

Three Richardsons, Ezekiel, Thomas and Samuel, descendants of the Danes, came from Kent Co., Eng., to America in 1630 with "Gov. Winthrop's Company," landing at Salem, Mass. They at first went to Charlestown, where they settled for a time and afterward rem. to Woburn, and were three of the first members that there constituted a church of seven members on Aug. 14, 1642.

Samuel was the paternal ancestor of most of the Richardsons of Cornish.

His son Stephen², also had a son, Stephen³, who rem. to Billerica, Mass., and was the parent of Ebenezer⁴, b. Feb. 1, 1707, and Amos⁴, b. March 25, 1710. These two brothers left Billerica and went to Pelham, and spent the rest of their lives there. There their children were born.

EBENEZER⁴ RICHARDSON had several children, among them was Jonas⁵ (Ebenezer⁴, Stephen³⁻², Samuel¹) b. Oct. 21, 1748; m. April 4, 1782, Zilpha Barker. They came to Cornish (date unknown) and lived several years. They were two of the nine constituent members of the Baptist Church at its organization in 1789. After their children were b., it appears they left town, leaving no posterity behind them so far as known, neither is it known where they settled. Children, all b. in Cornish:

- i. ZEBADIAH, b. Oct. 6, 1788.
- ii. CYNTHIA, b. Dec. 28, 1790.
- iii. EBENEZER, b. April 6, 1793.
- iv. NATHAN, b. June 22, 1795; d. March 11, 1804.
- v. CHARLOTTE, b. Feb. 5, 1798.
- vi. LOUISA, b. Aug. 1, 1800.
- vii. ZILPHA, b. June 20, 1802.
- viii. PERSENA, b. April 25, 1804.

AMOS⁴ RICHARDSON (Stephen³⁻², Samuel¹), a brother of Ebenezer⁴, was a very distinguished physician in Pelham, where he d. June 20, 1766, aged 55. He had four children: Eri, b. in 1740. Sarah, b. April 13, 1743. Joseph, b. March 5, 1745, and Isaac, b. in 1752, and d. March 3, 1754. His third child:

JOSEPH⁵ RICHARDSON (Amos⁴, Stephen³⁻², Samuel¹) b. March 5, 1745; m. May 11, 1767, Miriam Hildreth, b. March 7, 1743, d. Feb. 10, 1831, aged 87. He d. April 10, 1827, aged 82. They came to Cornish in 1789 with their children who were all b. in Pelham. Children:

2. ii. JOSEPH, JR., b. Jan. 21, 1771.
- iii. SARAH, b. March 10, 1773; m. June 23, 1796, John Huggins of Cornish. Nine children. (See Huggins.) Mr. Huggins d. in 1815. She d. July 13, 1852, aged 79.

Her biographer makes the following interesting mention of her: "She was a woman of strong and amiable character, as evinced in raising her large family without means, after the death of her husband, and in the fortitude and Christian resignation with which she met the loss of her eyesight for many years. Her humble cottage was the constant resort of school children, whom she dearly loved and charmed, with her songs and hymns from her inexhaustible supply. Her voice had a remarkable capacity, from the loving notes of the cooing dove to the deep, resonant bass of a man.

"Her figure, as she sat in her chair, with heavenward face and sightless orbs, one foot on the pedal of the spinning wheel, discoursing such music as is heard only in the spheres, would have entranced the chisel of the old Greek sculptor.

"And such was one of the many grand, New England mothers, who have silently sought the grave, 'unknown, unhonored and unsung.'"

SMITH.

ICHABOD BRANCH.

It has been the aim of the genealogist to find if possible a common ancestor for every family name, so that each member of that family may know their place in the family tree, and the number of their generation from a known ancestor. With the name Smith it has been found impossible to bring them all into such relationship, yet two or three branches of them can trace to a common ancestor. The monumental record of Ichabod Smith, Sr., antedates all other Smiths in town by a full generation. He was b. in 1738 and d. in Cornish Jan. 26, 1814, aged 76. Esther, his wife, was b. in 1738 and d. in Cornish, Oct. 23, 1829, aged 91. Their children, so far as ascertained, were:

medicine and became distinguished as a physician and surgeon. He began practice in Cornish where he was very successful and popular. After four years of practice in town he rem. to Hanover. The faculty of Dartmouth College about this time were proposing to add a medical and surgical department to the college proper and Dr. Smith was selected as the one to have charge of it as professor. This position he held several years beginning in 1798. It is also recorded of him that he subsequently had the honor of serving Yale College and Bowdoin College in the same capacity. He spent many of the last years of his life in New Haven, Conn., where he d. Jan. 26, 1829. (See Gen. Cat. Dart. Coll, pp. 87, also sketch in Med. Dept., Vol. 1.)

A SHREWD DOCTOR.

Here is a good story of Dr. Nathan Smith, who afterwards became the famous Professor of Surgery at Dartmouth College. His ready facility in turning to his own advantage what was meant to be a troublesome joke seems to have been the means of his rapid advancement in his profession:

It was in Cornish, N. H., that Nathan Smith first "hung out his shingle." While the newly fledged doctor was patiently waiting for business, a company of young men concluded to have a little fun at his expense. Their plan of procedure was suggested by the sight of a goose with a broken leg. Taking the tavern keeper into their confidence, they caught the limping bird, and as soon as all arrangements were complete, a messenger was despatched in haste to tell Dr. Smith that a patient who had unfortunately broken his leg desired his services at the tavern immediately. The doctor was promptly on hand, but began to suspect a trick as he came in sight of the house. Preceded by "mine host," and followed by a crowd, all ready to burst with delight at the anticipated surprise and chagrin of the doctor, he entered the great hall where, sure enough, lay the poor goose, extended in all honor upon a bed.

The doctor, without the least hesitation or show of surprise, advanced to the bed, and having, with scrupulous care, examined the broken limb, prepared his splints, reduced the fracture, and bound it up in the most scientific manner. He then, with extreme gravity, directed the tavern keeper to pay strict attention to the patient, on no account to suffer him to be moved from the bed for at least a week, but to feed him plentifully with Indian meal and water.

There was not much laughter when the doctor went away, though thus far all had gone well enough; but the next day the joke really became serious, when a good round bill for professional services came to the landlord, which he found himself obliged to pay.

The affair soon got abroad, and the shrewd and level-headed young doctor suddenly found himself famous. People said, "There's a man who knows how to take care of himself." Everybody respected him, and the foundation of a lucrative practice was laid for the young physician.

SPAULDING.

EDWARD¹ SPAULDING, the first of the name found in America, came from Eng. about 1630. Res. in Braintree, Mass. His son, John², and grandson, John³, were probably b. in Chelmsford, Mass. The latter rem. to Plainfield, Conn., where his second son, Jonathan⁴, was b. Aug. 7, 1688. Jonathan had nine children. Two of his sons, Jesse and Abel, settled in Plainfield, N. H., among the first, and their descendants there have been many. Abel⁵, b. July 10, 1728, was a soldier of the Revolution. The last years of his life were spent in Cornish, where he d. April 4, 1809, and his wife, Mary (Anderson), b. May 2, 1730, and d. June 5, 1821.

Dyer Spaulding, the youngest brother of Abel and Jesse, b. Nov. 18, 1732, in Plainfield, Conn., was a friend and neighbor of Israel Putnam in Conn. He served five years in the Indian war as one of the "Putnam Rangers," rendering very efficient service. His commission as Capt. in this war was given him by King George II. Very interesting events in the life of Col. Spaulding occurred in the summer of 1765 during the settlement of the town. He had the honor of conveying the first white woman and her children to Cornish. (See Settlement of Town.) Mr. Spaulding was m. in Conn., March 11, 1767, to Elizabeth Parkhurst, dau. of Timothy and Elizabeth (Cady) Parkhurst, b. July 17, 1734; d. June 3, 1816, aged 82. Taking his new bride, they came on horseback to Cornish, where he prepared a home. The bride "almost broke her neck," she said, "trying to look up to the tops of the noble pine trees." At the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, Mr. Spaulding again became a soldier, and received a new commission as Capt. in the Continental army, and afterwards promoted to major and colonel. Was at the Battle of Saratoga and at the surrender of Ft. Ticonderoga, and at Burgoyne's surrender, Oct. 10, 1777. The war being ended, he returned to his family in Cornish. "Was an excellent farmer; very ingenious; of a very pleasant disposition and lively and cheerful." He d. April 27, 1814, aged 82. His wid. d. June 3, 1816, aged 82. Children, all b. in Cornish:

2. SILAS⁶ SPAULDING (Dyer, Jonathan, John, Edward) b. May 5, 1772; d. Sept. 26, 1844. He was a farmer and passed his whole life in the house in which he was b. in Cornish. It was situated on the river road, two miles below the bridge which crosses the river at Windsor, Vt. Having, at one time been annoyed by a weasel that made many visits to his poultry yard, he determined to shoot it, if possible. He found the weasel's home, and not far off lay a gosling and a duck which had just been killed. When the weasel put his head out of the hole, Mr. Spaulding fired; but the nimble creature had eluded the shot and ran off unharmed. Sanford, his oldest son exclaimed, "Father, that is not the way to shoot a weasel, let me have the gun." So he took it, the animal meantime having gone home again, and aiming at the hole, he fired. The weasel was just coming out and the shot entered his head, and he was dead in an instant. "Always fire at the spot a quarter of a second before the weasel comes to it; that is the way to shoot a weasel, father." He m.

TAYLOR.

CAPT. JOSEPH TAYLOR was b. in Dunstable, in 1730. His record is somewhat peculiar yet very creditable to himself. He was possessed of a fearless spirit coupled with a love for adventure that found ample opportunity for development in the times and circumstances of his life. He was in the French and Indian Wars, in 1745 and 1755 where he rendered important service. While hunting in Maine in 1755, he was captured by the Indians, marched to Canada and sold for forty dollars to a French gentleman with whom he lived four years. He then was given his liberty and he returned to Dunstable. In Feb., 1760, he received a lieutenant's commission to serve in the Co. of Capt. Lovel in Col. John Goffe's Regt. raised for making a conquest of Canada. This Regt. was under command of Gen. Haveland whose headquarters that spring were at Crown Point. As soon as Lieut. Taylor was known to Gen. Haveland, he was detached from his own Regt. and sent forward at the head of the vanguard to guide them to Montreal. He also aided Rev. Mr. Ripley to Canada to procure young Indians for the purpose of educating them at Dartmouth College at Hanover. During the Revolutionary War he was active on the part of his country. Was often sent into Canada on secret expeditions. In Jan., 1776, he was appointed Capt. in Col. Bedel's Regt. with orders to go to Canada and enlist men, which he did, going to Quebec where he was of great service in uniting the Canadians to his country's cause. In 1779, he aided Gen. Hazen through the woods to Canada. He understood the French language and had an excellent memory. He recollected almost every event of the earlier part of his life, especially when he was in captivity, and the interviews with his master and other French gentlemen, after the surrender of Montreal. He always spoke of being kindly treated by both French and Indians. Capt. Taylor retained his faculties until a few hours before his death. He d. in Cornish, March 17, 1813, aged 83 years. He is buried in Cornish. On his tombstone is written: "This is the grave of a Hero."

During the year 1767, at a time when not engaged in his country's service, he came to Claremont, which place he made his home until about 1779, when he came to Cornish to live and res. on the farm afterwards owned and occupied by Samuel Ayers. While in Claremont he was selectman in 1772-73 and 1777. He m. Elizabeth Sumner of Claremont, dau. of Dr. William and Hannah (Hunt) Sumner, b. 1740, d. Aug. 15, 1803, aged 63.

He was a Revolutionary soldier. One record says he had nine children, another says fourteen children. He lived "under the mountain" where he d. Nov. 8, 1822.

PETER⁶ WALKER (*Moses*⁵, *Obadiah*⁴⁻³, *Thomas*²⁻¹), second son and third child of Moses⁵ Walker, was b. in Croydon Feb. 11, 1788. Came to Cornish about the year 1807; m. Dec. 10 of the same year by Rev. Joseph Rowell of Cornish to Lucinda Smith of Keene; b. July 2, 1784, and d. Oct. 11, 1872, aged 88. Peter d. Aug. 14, 1870, aged 82. Four children, all b. in Cornish:

- i. JOSEPH SMITH, b. Oct. 9, 1809. Before attaining his majority, he suddenly left home and was not heard from for thirty years. After leaving home until a little previous to 1907, nothing further was heard from him. At this time correspondence revealed the fact that his descendants had multiplied and taken high rank socially and financially in Penn. and the west. In response to their request, the genealogist granted them the privilege of inserting the following record of their ancestor and his descendants, as prepared by them:

"He left home at an early date and sought his fortune among strangers. The story handed down to his grandchildren was that in an early day corn was cared for with the hoe, the workers going barefoot. Joseph had no shoes and there was some kind of an entertainment approaching. Joseph had repeatedly asked his father to get him a pair of shoes. The Saturday before the entertainment came, which was his last chance to get his shoes and his father went again to town, with the same request from his son. When evening came and Joseph returned from the field, he hung his hoe in a tree near the kitchen door, where his mother was at work, and said to her, 'There, if father does not bring my shoes home with him tonight, I shall never hoe another hill of corn.' His father returned home without the shoes. Joseph said nothing, but that night when the family were all asleep, Joseph packed the few clothes that he had, and left his father's house barefoot; he never returned home. He went to Pennsylvania and there joined a civil engineering party and became a civil engineer, ever after following that work. He was married at Palo Alto, Penn., to Miss Mary Ann Hilficker, a native of Switzerland. She was b. March 6, 1806; d. July 1, 1880. Mr. Walker d. July 4, 1877, in Pottsville, Penn. Six children were born to them: Cyrus, John, William, Clara, Joseph, Mary.

"Joseph Smith Walker and his two sons, John and William, served in the Civil War. John was a despatch bearer, and made many heroic rides, having had three horses shot from under him.

"There are two members of his family living, Mary in Penn. and Cyrus at Earlham, Iowa.

"Cyrus, the eldest son of Joseph Smith, determined to visit his grandfather, in Cornish, of whom he had heard so many stories, but had never seen. He had saved his earnings, to make the trip that he had so long planned; so he started off carrying his shoes under his arm, and after a few days' journey arrived in the evening at his grandfather's house, after having spent a few minutes in putting on his shoes and dusting his clothes. He knocked at the door and his grandfather bade him come in, and when he told him, 'he was the son of his eldest son Joseph' he appeared not to believe him, and said, 'How do I know, my young man, but that you are an impostor.' Young Cyrus had come for no reason but to see his grandfather and this message to him, so hurt his feelings, that he never returned to his grandfather's home while he lived. He, however, visited the old home in 1907 at the age of 75 years, visiting some of his cousins there which added many pleasant thoughts to his store of memories.

"Genealogy of Cyrus Walker branch:

"CYRUS WALKER b. Aug. 17, 1832; m. Dec. 19, 1857, Martha Ann Brakey; b. March 23, 1836, near Bristol, Eng., dau. of Dr. John F. Brakey and Anna (McBurnie) Brakey. Her father was surgeon in the Queen's army of Scotland. Thirteen children were b. to this union; the two eldest d. the same day of black diphtheria, and interred in the same grave."

The eleven children surviving are as follows:

WELLMAN.

REV. JAMES WELLMAN was b. in Lynn End, now Lynnfield, Mass., May 10, 1723. Was a graduate of Harvard, in class of 1744. He was the ancestor of all the name who have since lived in town. His first settlement in the ministry occurred Oct. 7, 1747, when he was ordained over the Second Cong. Church in Sutton, Mass. The church was newly organized with a membership of seventy and gave a promise of a useful career. He, however, served the church but thirteen years. His connection with the church had not been pleasant, especially during his last years, and his ministry had been prosecuted under considerable difficulty, owing to differences that had arisen between him and his people. A council was summoned which recommended his resignation. He accordingly resigned and was dismissed July 22, 1760. Mr. Wellman was a man of high moral tone, inflexible and outspoken in all matters of conscience, which frequently contributed to alienation of affection between him and his people. A man of great ability, a fine scholar for his time, excelling in knowledge of the Hebrew language. During the first three years after the settlement of Cornish the people had no settled preacher among them and they began to hunger for the preached word. On the 14th of April, 1768, they called a meeting of the town to take action about settling a minister among them. The meeting occurred on the 28th following. At this meeting they voted to extend a call to

REV. JAMES WELLMAN.

First Settled Minister in Cornish—1768.

Rev. James Wellman to settle among them, and chose a committee to carry out their wishes, and to make arrangements with Mr. Wellman. He accepted their call, came to Cornish and was installed as "minister and pastor of the church and towns of Cornish and Windsor, Sept. 29, 1768." He was therefore the first gospel preacher of the first church gathered in town. (See Cong. Church History.) After this, in 1792, he received the degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College. He represented the town five years in the legislature, 1789-93.

WHITING.

NATHAN and PHEBE WHITING with their family were residents of the town several years near the close of the 18th century. As they left no tombstone record, it is probable they left town soon after unless they were buried in graves that were never marked by any tablets. In 1790, the family consisted of six members: three males and three females. The town record, in part at least, thus makes mention of their children:

- i. NATHAN, JR., b. Oct. 31, 1782.
- ii. SALLY, b. July 3, 1787.
- iii. ELIJAH, b. Sept. 21, 1789.

Mrs. Whittaker also emigrated with her daughters to the same place. Adaline G. had two children. (See Penniman.)

WHITTEN.

JOHN WHITTEN, with Anna his wife, came from Portsmouth and settled in town about 1772. It is said their family at last were thirteen children, but only the names of six are found on the records of the town; the rest are veiled in uncertainty. It is also said to be a fact that his wife had four children at one birth. They were named: Wonderful, Strange, Marvelous and True. They lived but a short time. The spot where they were buried is marked by a stone and has been witnessed by many. In the census of 1790 the family consisted of Mr. Whitten and one large boy and two small boys, also his wife and eight girls. Mr. Whitten was a very strong man, counted almost a giant in those days. The names of children on record in town are:

- i. MERCY, b. at Portsmouth May 17, 1769.
- ii. SAMUEL, b. at Portsmouth June 17, 1771.
- iii. HANNAH, b. in Cornish Sept. 7, 1773.

WYMAN.

FRANCIS¹ WYMAN, with his brother, Lieut. John, were among the first to settle Woburn, Mass., about 1641. They were large landholders there, and their names often appear on legal writings of the town. From Francis¹ all the Wymans of Cornish have descended. The generations following him are: William², Edward³ and William⁴. Of this family, which resided in Pelham, three brothers, Joshua⁵, Jonathan⁵ and Jesse⁵ came and settled in Cornish and spent the remainder of their lives here.

1. JOSHUA⁵ WYMAN, the eldest of the three, was b. Nov. 4, 1767, in Pelham. He m. in Pelham Sept. 9, 1788, Miriam Richardson of Pelham, dau. of Joseph and Miriam (Hildreth) Richardson, b. Aug. 24, 1768. They were admirable specimens of the old Puritan character that has made New England what it is. They continued to live in Pelham till March, 1794, when they rem. to Cornish. He built the two-story brick house destroyed in 1905. He d. June 9, 1815. Being thus called to leave his family of eight living children, in the midst of a highly useful life, he caused them to assemble at his bedside, where he tenderly addressed them one by one on the great concerns of eternity, giving them such counsel as only a Christian father can give his children in a dying hour.

Of the wife and mother, her biographer says: "She was eminently worthy of such a husband. She outlived him more than thirty years, and brought up in the fear, love and service of God, her large family of children. She was a noble Christian woman. She managed with great skill and success a large farm,—the farm now (1903) owned and occupied by Wilbur Quimby—and her house was always the abode of peace and joy. She looked well to the ways of her household and in due time, they all rose up and called her blessed. Nor has the blessed influence of her instructions, example and prayers been lost among her posterity." She d. Dec. 17, 1848, aged 80. Children, the first four b. in Pelham, the rest in Cornish:

COMPILER'S NOTE.

After a critical review of these genealogical records, the compiler reluctantly commits them to the press, fully aware that multitudes of facts and data have been withheld that could and should have been contributed by those most interested who are now to suffer from their loss. Most gladly would the compiler have received and copied a full record of every family of the town, thus rendering complete satisfaction to all. Hundreds of letters and personal appeals, both in public and private, can testify that he has urged this until the opportunity has ended.

This note is appended that no censure for this lack may rest upon the compiler, but rather upon those who have neglected or refused to render their records acceptable.
